SPACE TO THINK

RACE & THE THERAPIST

Mondays 24th January, 28th
February & 28th March 2022

6.45pm for 7.00pm start –
8.15pm

Brief synopsis: This series of three sessions over Zoom features Black and Asian Therapists who share their thinking on racism and how it impacts on our clinical work.

CONTEXT

We live and work in a society which includes many people from Black and Asian communities and yet in our Institute and, very probably in our case loads, these communities are vastly under represented.

TOPIC

We want to offer an opportunity for colleagues to access the work of Black and Asian therapists who have already done a lot of thinking about how racism manifests in British society and within the consulting room in particular. To this end we invite you to listen to three podcasts which we have selected from the library in the Black and Asian Therapy Network website. We will then meet to consider and discuss the issues raised.

PODCASTS

Click here to access the podcasts <https://www.baatn.org.uk/podcasts/> (access is via the Library tab)

Monday 24th January

Examining Whiteness - Challenges of processing being white therapists in a racist society - Episode 19. Eugene Ellis interviews two white therapists, Bea Miller and Susan Keys.

Monday 28th February

Towards Bicultural Competence - beyond black and white – Episode 6 Gloria Gordon

Monday 28th March

The Challenge of Racism in Therapeutic Practice - Episode 20 Dr McKenzie-Mavinga
